The OS2U Kingfisher scout observation plane used by the Navy primarily for patrol work has had amazing success with extra patrol duties. The light-armored plane, although lacking in speed and maneuverability, has performed miracles in the new and dangerous missions brought about by the advent of amphibious warfare. Kingfishers are catapulting from the decks of battleships and cruisers into new roles far beyond the expectation of the original designers.

When the full record of the Kingfishers' achievements are written, they will include: sub-hunting and attacking, bombing, strafing, escorting convoys, operating reconnaissance missions, directing ship's gunfire, spotting airports and enemy movement, carrying communication between ship and shore, landing in rough seas on rescue missions and in one instance being responsible for the surrender of enemy infantrymen by herding a group into the hands of our armed forces.

The Kingfisher has performed a tough and important assignment in a magnificent manner.

V P B

The powerful rugged PBY Catalina and PB4Y Liberator, noted for their dependability and long staying power have demonstrated on numerous occasions that they have the ability to go any where in any weather to accomplish especially hazardous missions and to come back.

The big lumbering PBY Catalina, known throughout the South Pacific as "Dumbo" has performed miracles with its rescue work. "Dumbo" and the Liberator have repeatedly demonstrated in this war that they can almost do everything; glide-bomb enemy ships and shore installations, patrol the Aleutians, carry men and supplies into battle areas and on rare occasions have participated in the dog-fighting. The PBYs, operating as "Black Cats," have made nightly strikes deep in enemy territory to knock out supply ships and escorts. "Dumbo" has established an enviable record for aerial versatility and will carry on the magnificent job of picking up aviators downed in the sea throughout the war.

In the future, any big or important strike made by the Navy will always include the services of "Dumbo" and the Liberators. To all allied aviators operating in the South Pacific Area "Dumbo" and the Liberators are often the difference between life and death. The fact that they are always included in any strike and are available for rescue is the greatest single morale factor in our air war with the Japs.

VF •

Spearheading almost every attack on enemy positions or shipping in either the Atlantic or Pacific Areas are the fast, long-range, heavily armed fighter planes of the U. S. Navy. The most popular planes forming this group are the hard-hitting Wildcats, Hellcats and Corsairs which are flown by the Navy and Marine Corps pilots from aircraft carriers and advanced land bases. The combination of the Navy's best pilots and planes have been instrumental in driving the Japs from shore installations, air and sea lanes.

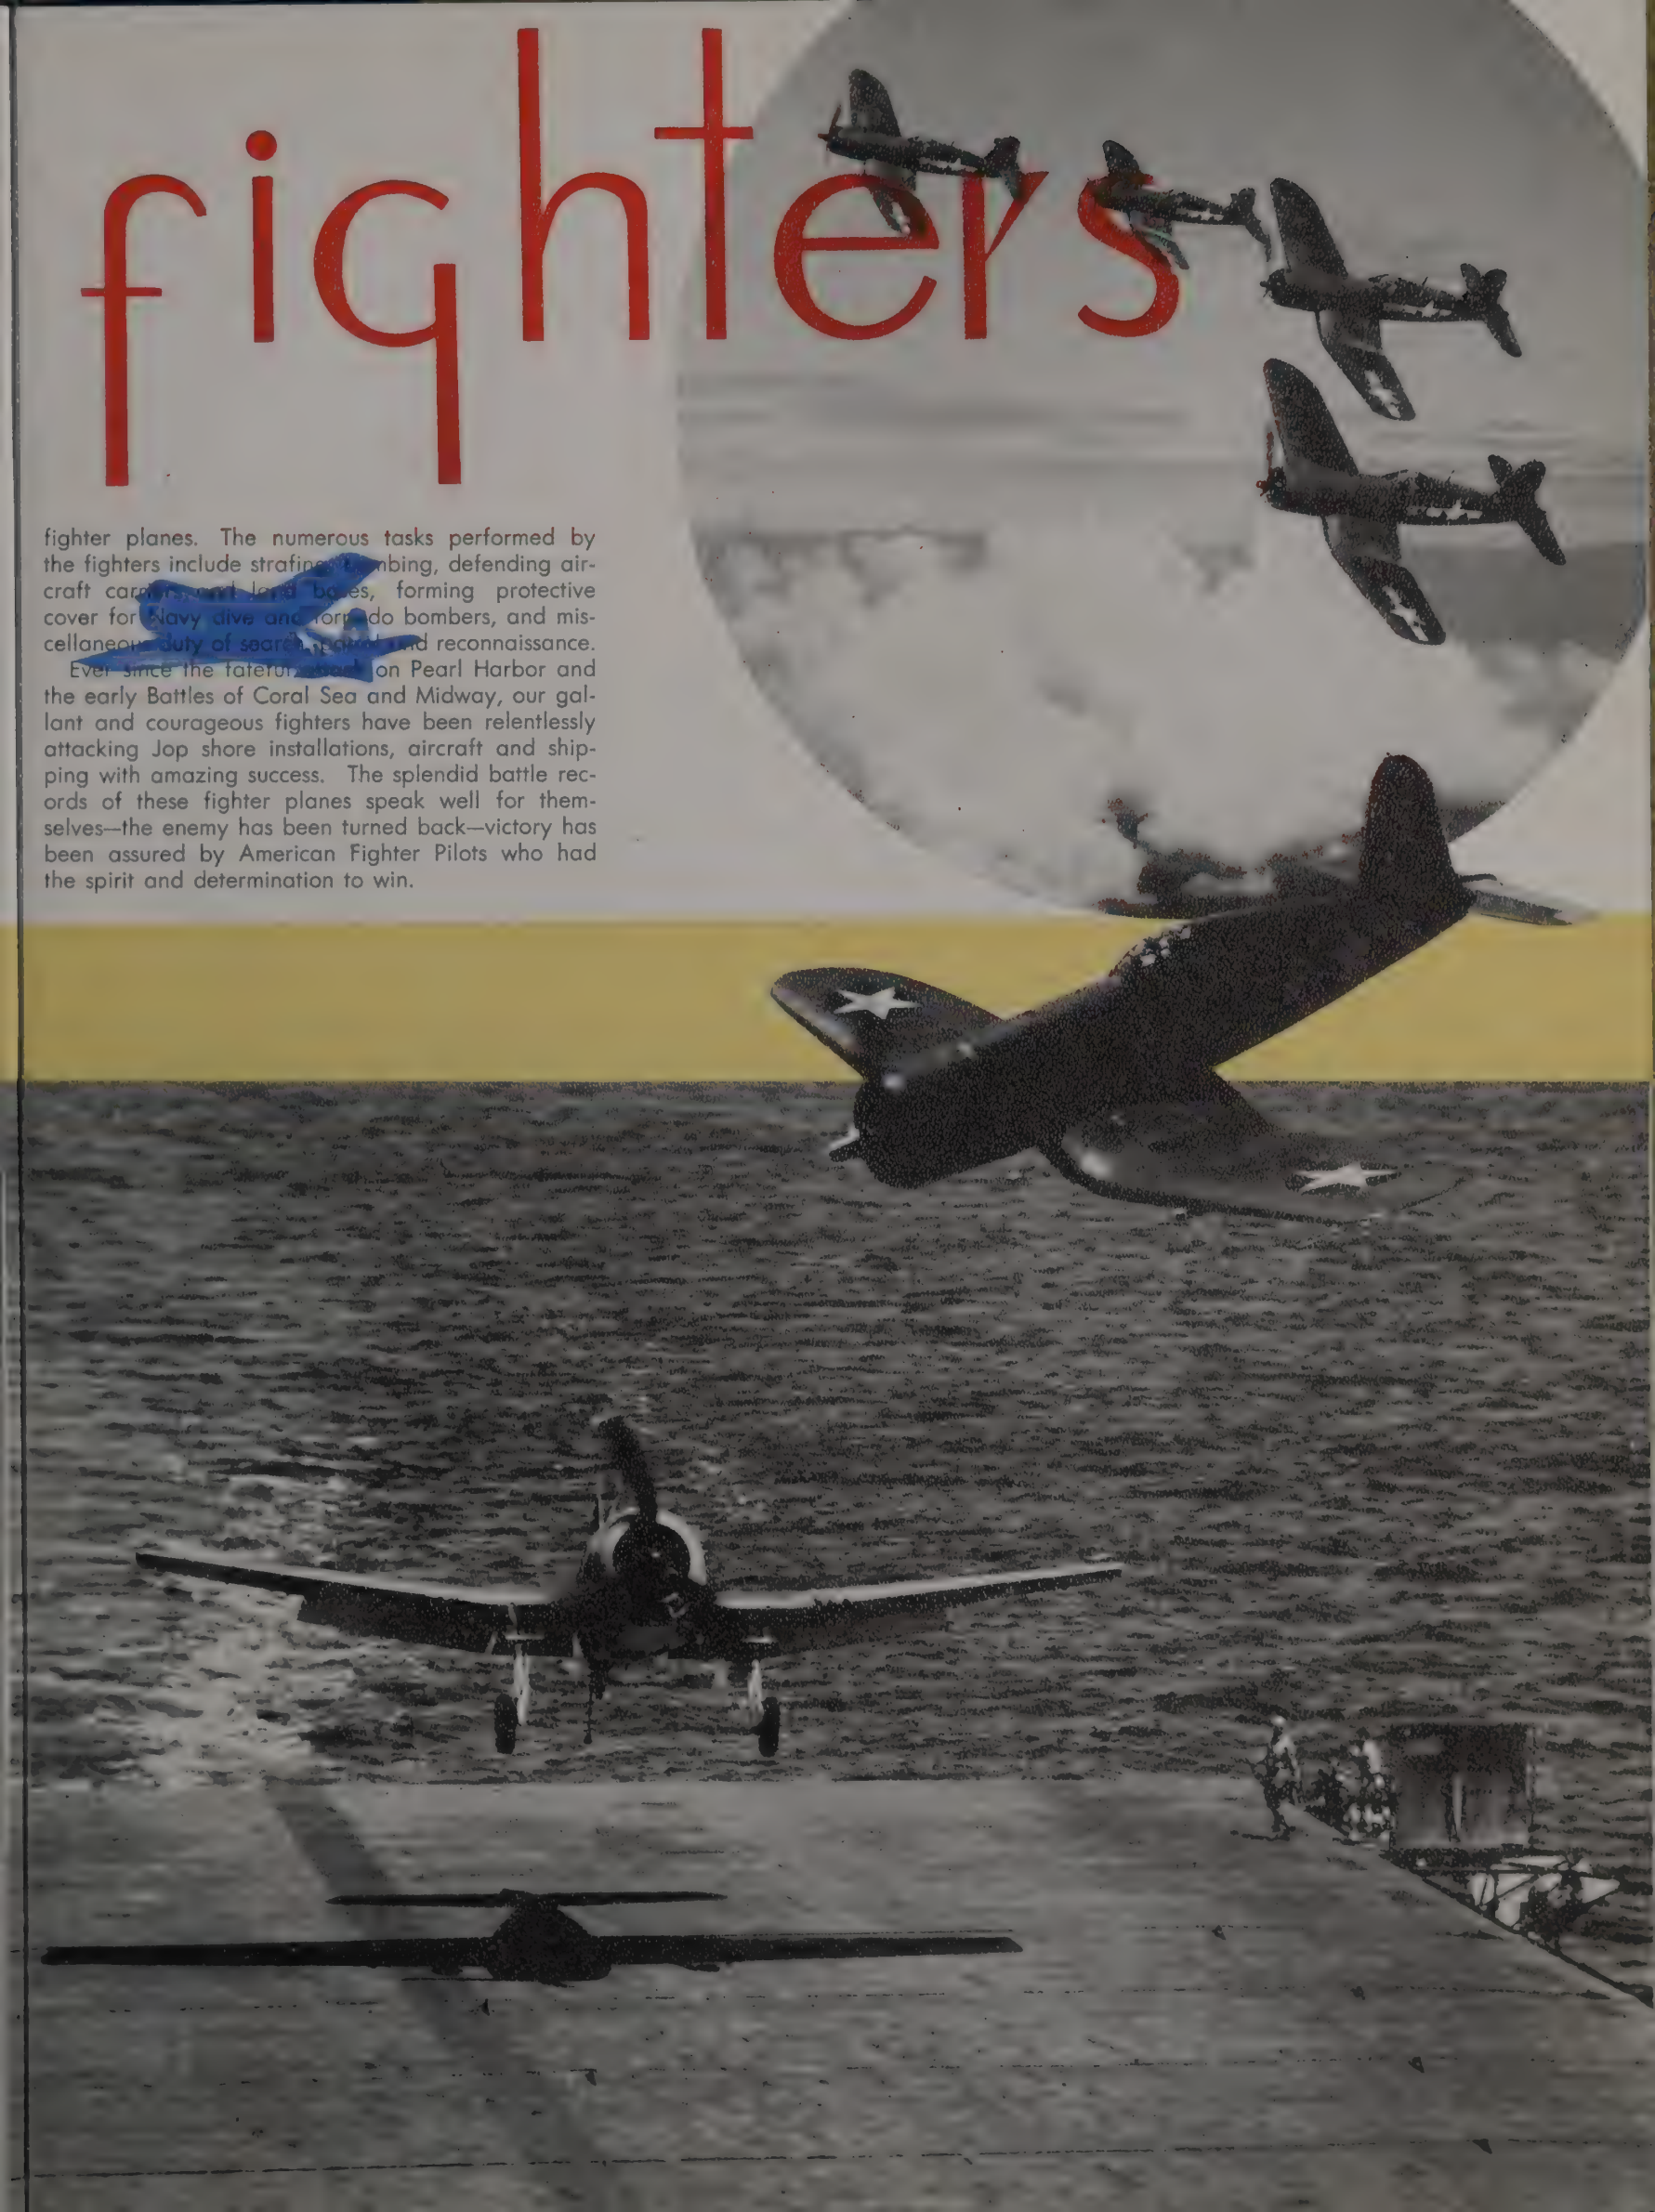

The all-around fighter groups have been called on to perform difficult and dangerous missions in addition to the regular duties as fighter planes. The numerous tasks performed by the fighters include strafing, bombing, defending aircraft carriers and land bases, forming protective cover for Navy dive and torpedo bombers, and miscellaneous duty of search, patrol and reconnaissance.

Ever since the fateful attack on Pearl Harbor and the early Battles of Coral Sea and Midway, our gallant and courageous fighters have been relentlessly attacking Jap shore installations, aircraft and shipping with amazing success. The splendid battle records of these fighter planes speak well for themselves—the enemy has been turned back—victory has been assured by American Fighter Pilots who had the spirit and determination to win.

VSB • dive

After a long and spectacular career with the Navy during which time it had participated in many successful battles with the enemy, the SBD Dauntless dive bomber gave way to a new and improved SB2C Helldiver as standard Navy Carrier equipment. This change was necessitated by the introduction of new dive bomber tactics and the need for a carrier or landbased plane capable of higher speed, longer range, heavier armament and carrying power. The new and deadly dive bomber, the Helldiver, has become the hottest, hardest-hitting plane in our forces.

In addition to the regular dive bombing work, the SBDs and SB2Cs have been sent on scouting missions, strafing enemy ground troops, bombing enemy ships and shore installations, directing ship and shore gunfire, searching and attacking submarines, mine-laying and photographic reconnaissance. The success with which they have carried out these missions is shown by the vast amount of enemy shipping destroyed.

Attached to aircraft carriers and advanced bases throughout the Atlantic and Pacific Areas, the SBDs have been on the job twenty-four hours a day. They have become the backbone of our attacking forces in our gallant effort to drive the enemy from the sea and air. This was shown in the Battle of Midway when our dive bombers attacked a huge force of Jap aircraft carriers and drove them off, thus removing the enemy's sting and probably saving Hawaii and the Pacific Coast.

VTB

The TBF and TBM planes, favorites among Navy pilots for the delicate job of torpedo bombing, are fast, heavily armed and capable of carrying destructive torpedoes or an equal load of bombs and mines. The planes, used by both the Navy and Marine Corps Squadrons, have performed in a magnificent manner and are responsible for the destruction of Jap shipping and shore installations.

Since Pearl Harbor, these planes, used primarily for torpedo bombing, have been improved tremendously. In addition to the material improvements, new hit and run tactics have been developed that allow the planes to participate in more different types of missions than any other type of plane designed. Among other tasks performed by these planes are strafing, high-level, skip and masthead bombing, scouting, dropping depth charges on submarines and occasionally have acted as their own fighter protection.

After the fateful Battles of the Coral Sea and Midway, when the gallant Torpedo Squadron 8 and others met with disaster, the curtain rose on a new era for the torpedo planes and squadrons.

Operating from the decks of aircraft carriers in the Atlantic and Pacific Areas the torpedo bombing squadrons in pursuit of enemy shipping and submarines have left a path of death and destruction in the enemy fleet.

The Naval Air Transport Service, commonly known around the world as NATS, came into official existence on December 12, 1941. Although then there was only an order signed by the Secretary of the Navy authorizing it, NATS soon came into prominence and spread to the far corners of the world. The organization now operates planes on numerous missions through all kinds of weather more than a million miles a month, carrying several thousand passengers and nearly 2,000,000 pounds of cargo monthly.

Moving high priority cargo and personnel to points where they are needed in a hurry is the most important assignment of NATS. With safety as the keynote of its operations, NATS has established an outstanding record in its short period of existence. This is due largely to the excellent training that its fliers and ground crewmen have previously received and to the efficient use of its various squadrons and equipment.

The Naval Air Transport Service varies in its assignments from delivering aeroplane engines and medical supplies to the South Pacific to carrying personnel and mail to Alaska and outlying bases. NATS operates scheduled planes between Canada and South America, California and Australia, or to Alaska, New York and England. Skymasters, Mariners, Coronados, Mars and other powerful planes are responsible for delivering cargo and maintaining the schedules over its 60,000 miles of routes throughout the world in which speed and safety play simultaneous roles.

REAR ADMIRAL CHARLES PERRY MASON, USN.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Mason, USN, Chief of Naval Air Intermediate Training and Commander of the Naval Air Training Bases, is in charge of the Administration of the extensive Aviation Cadet Flight Training Program at the World's Largest Naval Air Training Bases.

Under his direct command is a well trained and organized staff of Naval Officers, who ably assist in carrying out the administration policies of the Flight Training Program. The duties and services performed by these officers are numerous and consist, not only in giving the best possible flight instruction, but in keeping the cadets in good physical condition. They are also instrumental in maintaining good morale, making available fine living conditions, supplying necessary equipment and teaching the cadets various ground school courses in preparation for their important assignments ahead as Officers and Aviators of the U. S. Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard Reserve.

The Naval Air Training Bases has made an outstanding contribution to the war effort through the numerous services performed. It is only through the coordinated efforts of the Naval and Civilian Personnel that we attribute the highly successful operation of this base.

ADMINISTRATION

PRESIDENT FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

Through the untiring effort of President Roosevelt, as Commander-in-Chief of all our armed forces, the U. S. Naval Sea and Aviation Branches have expanded until they have become the most powerful in the world today.

As Assistant Secretary of the Navy during World War I, he was a firm advocate of Naval Sea and Air Power, for the protection of our shores and also as a force for the maintenance of peace.

There will be a place in the future for which this great leader has laid the foundation. The combination of Naval Air and Surface Craft intact will provide one of the greatest keys to maintaining the peace in the post-war world.

The Honorable JAMES V. FORRESTAL SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

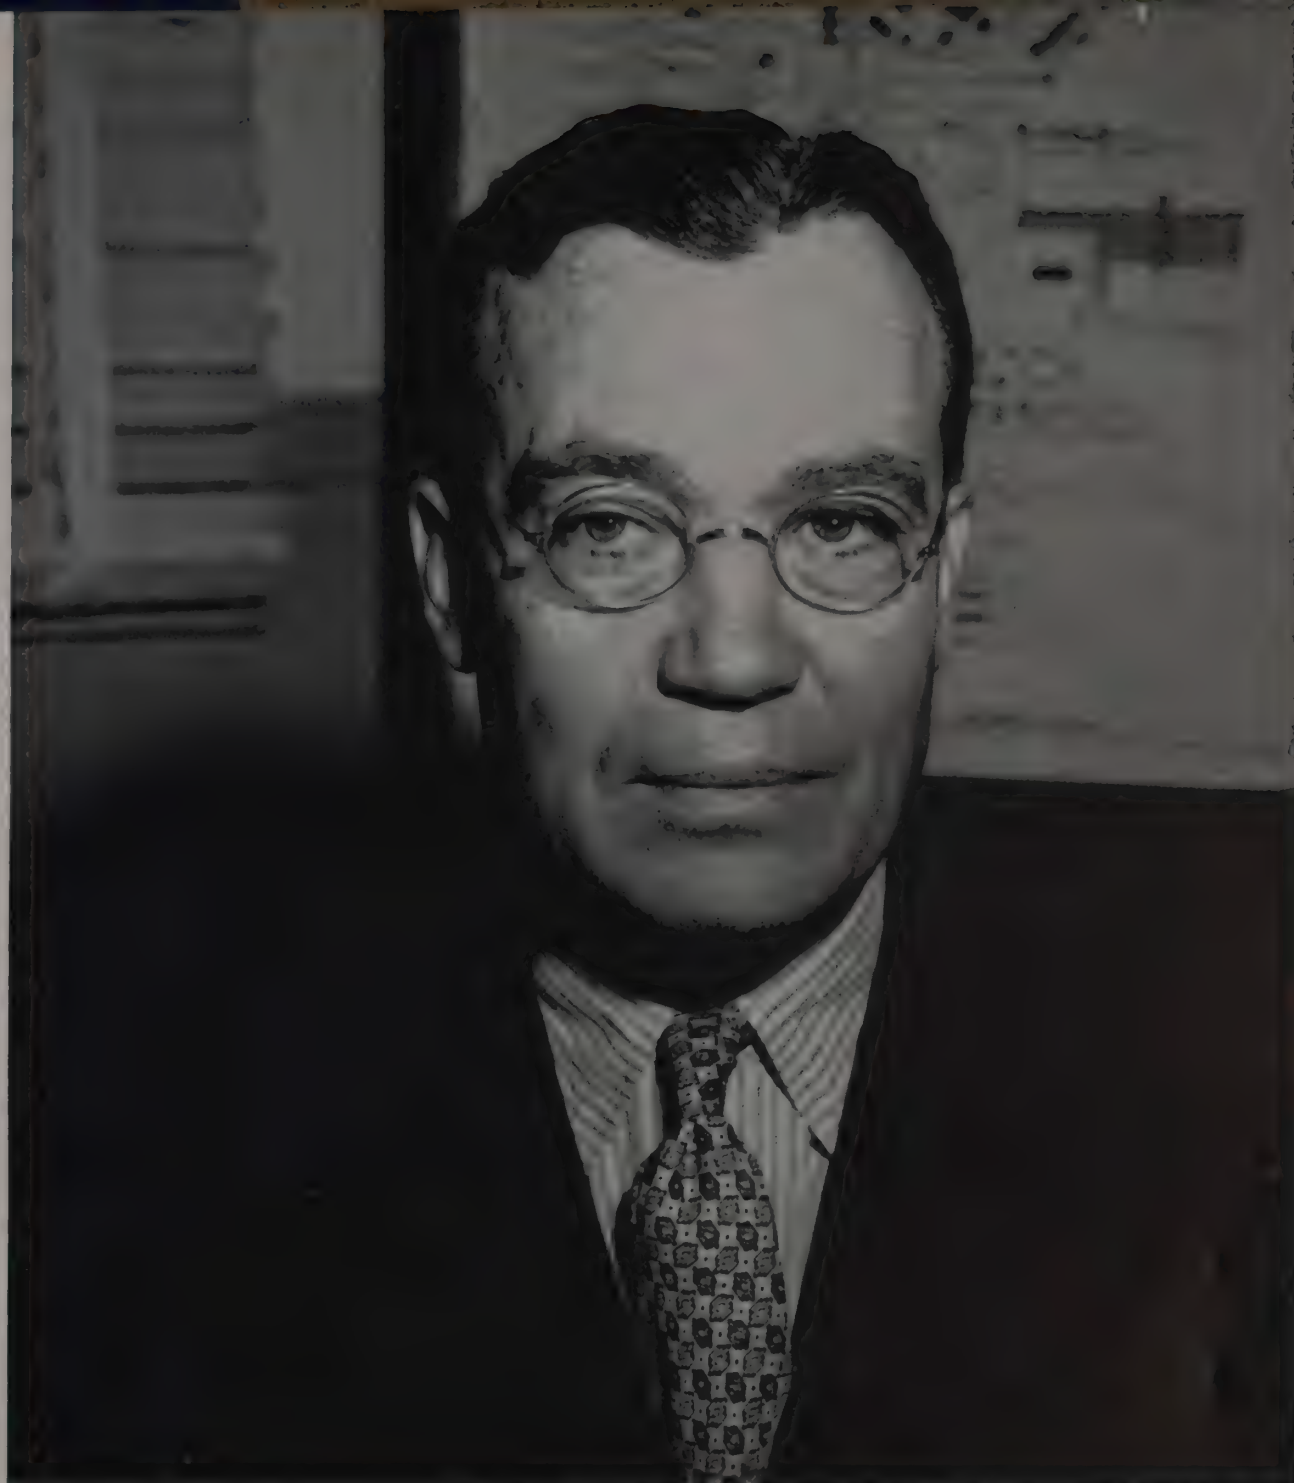

James V. Forrestal became the forty-eighth Secretary of the Navy on May 18, 1944, when he succeeded the late Frank Knox, who died April 28, 1944. Before assuming his present position, he served as Under Secretary of the Navy.

Secretary Forrestal brought with him to the office of Secretary of the Navy, a wealth of experience and an enviable record gained as a business executive and a public servant. In June 1940, he resigned as President of the banking firm of Dillon, Reed and Company, to accept an appointment as Administrative Assistant to President Roosevelt in work connected with National Defense Problems. After serving in this capacity for a short time, he was appointed to the office of Under Secretary of the Navy.

As Under Secretary of the Navy, he made several inspection trips to the South Pacific to obtain first hand information on the activities of our forces in that area. The first trip took him to Pearl Harbor, New Caledonia, and Espirito Santo, New Hebrides. Later he went to the Pacific aboard a battleship that participated in the Battle of Kwajalein, and went ashore on the second day after the Marines had established a beachhead. While on this trip, he inspected installations at Solomon Island, New Guinea and Australia.

With first hand knowledge of the huge task ahead of our forces, Secretary Forrestal has vigorously expanded the U. S. Navy in all departments so that it is now the largest and most powerful in the world. He has combined the meticulous planning of the Chiefs of Staff and the use of overwhelming power to carry the war to a successful conclusion.

Honorable ARTEMUS L. GATES
 ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE NAVY

Artemus L. Gates, former President of the New York Trust Company, brought with him to his present post, a wealth of experience gained as an executive in a long distinguished and successful business career. To add further to his background, he has the distinction of being one of our first Naval Aviators.

Previous to the outbreak of World War I, he was given the opportunity to enter the Navy's first flight training program. After successful completion of this training, he was commissioned as an Ensign and designated as Naval Aviator No. 65 out of the original group who qualified.

During World War I, he served as Commanding Officer of the U. S. Naval Air Station at Dunkerque, France. He had many other important assignments that included active flying and administrative duties for the duration of the War. At the conclusion of the war in 1919, as a Lieutenant Commander, he was released from active duty and returned to civilian life.

For his active service in World War I, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal (USN), the Distinguished Flying Cross (British) and the Croix de Guerre with Palm (French). He was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor by the French Government.

VICE ADMIRAL AUBREY W. FITCH, USN DEPUTY CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS (AIR)

Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch, USN, a veteran of 38 years in the U. S. Navy, succeeded Vice Admiral John McCain, USN, as Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Air. His eminent qualifications for this post assures Naval Aviators of outstanding leadership in the coming show-down struggle with Japan.

Admiral Fitch was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy with the Class of 1906. After graduation, he served the usual tours of duty with the Fleet and at the beginning of World War I, was serving as Gunnery Officer on board the USS WYOMING. He also served as skipper of the USS LANGLEY. In 1929, he transferred to aviation and at the age of 46 reported to Pensacola for flight training.

Admiral Fitch was stationed at Coronado, California, when news came of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor. The following day a carrier division under his command including the SARATOGA, was steaming toward the enemy in a hunt that extended to Midway and Wake. It was not until May 7, 1942, however, that they came to grips with the enemy in the Battle of the Coral Sea. When the smoke of that battle cleared, the Japs had suffered their first serious setback in their drive to Australia. His timely decision to abandon ship after his flagship, the LEXINGTON, was fatally damaged, saved the lives of the crew.

As Commander Aircraft, South Pacific Force, Admiral Fitch coordinated Navy, Marine Corps, Army and New Zealand air units during the joint operations of Allied Forces afloat and ashore in the South Pacific. His "Angels of Destruction" sank more ships, knocked down more planes, and accounted for more Japs than any other commander of shore-based aircraft in the American armed forces. The authority for this statement is Admiral Halsey, who recommended him for promotion from Rear to Vice Admiral after the Battle of the Coral Sea.

Admiral Fitch was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for his skillful direction of a task force that outwitted and outfought a powerful Japanese force in the Battle of the Coral Sea.

REAR ADMIRAL DEWITT C. RAMSEY, USN

CHIEF OF THE BUREAU OF AERONAUTICS

Rear Admiral Dewitt C. Ramsey entered the U. S. Naval Academy in 1908 and was graduated with the class of 1912. Following graduation he served on board the U.S.S. New Jersey, U.S.S. Montana, U.S.S. Nashville and the U.S.S. Tingey, until 1916 when he was assigned to duty at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola for flight training. He was designated Naval Aviator No. 45.

He has served on board the U.S.S. Pennsylvania; U.S.S. Columbia; as instructor at Pensacola; U.S.S. Wright; Navigator aboard the U.S.S. Langley; in command of the training aviation squadron at the Naval Academy; Executive Officer of the U.S.S. Wright. In 1934 he assumed charge of the the Aviation Section, Ships Movements Division, Office of the Chief of Naval Operation. Later he became Executive Officer of the U.S.S. Saratoga.

Rear Admiral Ramsey had a command at sea from May until October 1942. He served in the Office of the Commander-in-Chief, Pacific Fleet, until March 1943, when he assumed command of a Task Force in the South Pacific. He has been detached from that assignment with orders to duty as Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Navy Department, Washington, D. C. He assumed that duty on August 6, 1943.

Rear Admiral Ramsey has been awarded the Navy Cross "For extraordinary heroism and distinguished service during occupation of Guadalcanal, Tulagi, and the Battle of the Solomons." He also holds the Mexican Service Medal, Fleet Clasp, Asiatic-Pacific Area Campaign Medal, and the "Decoration and Diploma Commandeur del' Ordre Grand Bucae de la Couronne de Chene, from Luxemburg.

REAR ADMIRAL CHARLES P. MASON, USN COMMANDANT N. A. I. T. C. - N. A. T. C.

Rear Admiral Charles P. Mason, USN, has had a prominent part in the development of Naval Aviation. He has had unusually wide experience afloat and ashore, and is now Chief of the Naval Air Intermediate Training and Commander of the Naval Air Training Bases.

Admiral Mason was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1912. Following graduation, he spent several years with the Fleet before reporting for flight training at N. A. S., Pensacola. Winning his "Wings" in 1917, he was designated Naval Aviator No. 52.

During World War I, he served in France inspecting and testing aircraft. He has the distinction of flying the first American-built Liberty-motored seaplane delivered in Europe.

Following the War, he organized the first seaplane patrol squadron in the Pacific, led the first long-distance flight ever attempted by the Navy and conducted the Navy's first test of a carrier's functions in fleet maneuvers.

Admiral Mason's impressive record includes service on the USS LANGLEY, famous as the first carrier ever ordered to duty with the fleet, and later on the carriers USS SARATOGA and the USS YORKTOWN. He took command of the USS HORNET one month after her participation in the bombing raid on Tokyo. The Navy Cross was presented to him for outstanding service as skipper of the ill-fated USS HORNET at the time of her gallant fight against overwhelming odds off Santa Cruz.

He was later commander of the task force of converted carriers in the South Pacific area, and subsequently was made Commander Air Solomons Islands. He remained in command of the Air Forces in Guadalcanal Area for two months.

Admiral Mason was decorated as a "Grand Officer" of the Order of the Southern Cross, by the Attache for Air of the Brazilian Embassy in recognition of the attentions, services and spirit of cooperation extended by the Brazilian Air Force.

REAR ADMIRAL J. J. CLARK, USN

COMMANDANT N. A. I. T. C. - N. A. T. C.

Rear Admiral Joseph J. Clark, USN, arrived aboard NAS, Corpus Christi, on 27 June 1945, to assume command as Chief of NAITC and as commander of NATB. The famed commander of a carrier division in the First Carrier Task Force recently returned from combat in the Pacific, he had been on duty in that theatre for four years.

A native of Pryor, Oklahoma, Admiral Clark attended the Naval Academy and was graduated with the class of 1918. He entered flight training at Pensacola, Florida and later in 1925 received his designation as a Naval Aviator.

During World War I, he served aboard the USS North Carolina, which was engaged in conveying troops across the Atlantic. Since then, he has served the following tours of duty: 1919-1922, destroyers in European waters; 1922-1923, Department of Seamanship and Navigation at Naval Academy; 1926, Senior Aviation Officer aboard the USS Mississippi; 1928-1931, Executive Officer at NAS Anacostia, D. C.; 1933, Commanding Officer, Fighter Squadron Two attached to USS Lexington; 1933-1936, member of Board of Inspection and Survey; 1937-1939, Executive Officer, Fleet Air Base at Pearl Harbor, and after a brief tour of duty with Patrol Wing Two, returned as Executive Officer of the NAS at Pearl Harbor.

For service in command of a Task Group in the Pacific, Admiral Clark was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Navy Cross. He also wears the Victory Medal, Escort Clasp, for service on the USS North Carolina during the first world war; the American Defense Service Medal with a bronze "A" for service on the Yorktown which operated in actual or potential belligerent contact with the Axis forces in the Atlantic Ocean from 21 September 1941 to 11 October 1941, and 31 October to 4 November 1941, and also the Asiatic-Pacific Area Campaign medal.

CAPTAIN JOSEPH B. DUNN, USN

CHIEF OF STAFF

Captain Joseph B. Dunn, USN, assumed duties as Chief of Staff, Naval Air Intermediate Training Command, on May 12, 1944 relieving Captain E. O. McDonnell, USNR, who was detached for duty afloat.

Captain Dunn, who was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1922, has had 22 years of Naval Service aboard cruisers, submarines, aircraft and carriers. His service includes three years aboard U.S.S. Rochester, four years in the submarine service, commanding officer R-6, three years a senior aviator aboard U.S.S. Concord, gunnery officer Pensacola. During the year 1929 he was instructor of engineering and physics at the Naval Academy.

Other tours of duty included service aboard the U.S.S. Ranger, as Squadron Commander, fifteen months with a squadron at Coco Solo, Panama, Commander of VP Squadron at Jacksonville, Florida and later Commanding Officer and Superintendent of Training at Cecil Field.

Captain Dunn, before coming to Corpus Christi, was Commanding Officer of the U.S.S. Bogue.

For his aggressive and capable leadership of the U.S.S. Bogue and her escort group against submarines in the Atlantic, he was awarded the Legion of Merit.

COMMANDER F. BRUNER

SUPERINTENDENT OF AVIATION TRAINING

Commander F. Bruner assumed the duties of Superintendent of Aviation Training on December 3, 1943, succeeding Commander J. E. Baker, who was detached. He arrived aboard the Naval Air Station October 18, 1943, following more than a year of duty with a North Pacific patrol squadron.

Commander Bruner was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1927, and two years later completed instruction courses at the Chemical Warfare and Torpedo School. In 1929, he completed the flight training program at Pensacola, Florida and was assigned to a Utility Squadron on the Pacific Coast. From 1930 to 1932, he served with a Fighting Squadron aboard the U.S.S. Lexington and U.S.S. Langley.

Other tours of duty took him to Pensacola, where he served as a primary seaplane instructor, completed the aerial photography course and then was assigned as a fighting plane instructor. He served with aviation units aboard cruisers from 1934 until 1937, when he was placed in charge of the photography laboratory and school at Pensacola.

He was presented the Air Medal for meritorious achievement in battling Jap submarines.

CAPTAIN HENRY C. DOAN, USN

COMMANDING OFFICER OF NAVAL AIR STATION

Captain Henry C. Doan, USN, arrived aboard the Naval Air Station in June, 1944, to assume duties as Commanding Officer, relieving Commander R. M. Signer, USN, who was detached for duty afloat.

Captain Doan graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1924. Soon after graduation, he reported for duty aboard the U.S.S. Arizona, and later the U.S.S. Pennsylvania. After this, he spent five years in the under-seas service and at the end of this period, was qualified to serve as submarine commander.

Captain Doan reported to N. A. S., Pensacola for flight training and in 1932, received his designation as a Naval Aviator. He was immediately assigned to a fighter squadron aboard the U.S.S. Langley, and after a two year tour of duty was transferred to the U.S.S. Texas and then to the U.S.S. Idaho. Following this, he reported aboard the U.S.S. Rockaway as Commanding Officer.

Before reporting aboard the Naval Air Station, Captain Doan was the Commanding Officer of the Kingsville Auxiliary Naval Air Station.

CAPTAIN JACKSON R. TATE, USN

DEPUTY COMMANDANT OF THE NAVAL AIR TRAINING BASES

Captain Jackson R. Tate, USN, returned in May, 1944 from the Island of Tarawa, where he was Atoll Commander to assume duties as Deputy Commandant of the Naval Air Training Bases.

Captain Tate served as an enlisted man during World War I, when he volunteered for duty in the Naval Reserve. During this period he served aboard the U.S.S. Agamemnon, U.S.S. Connecticut and was aboard the U.S.S. Borie in 1921 on its World Cruise.

In 1922, he entered the flight training program at Pensacola and upon completion, received his designation as a Naval Aviator. After graduation, he was ordered to the U.S.S. Langley, as experimental and squadron pilot. In 1925, he became a member of VF Squadron 2, the first carrier squadron formed by the Navy.

Captain Tate has had an outstanding career in Naval Aviation and has been identified with many of the early experiments of Naval Aircraft and Aircraft Carriers. After two years in the experimental division at N. A. S., Norfolk, he was transferred to the U.S.S. Mississippi, as Squadron Executive Officer of VO-3, and later serving aboard the U.S.S. Ranger, as Commanding Officer of Fighting Squadron 5. He has served on the U.S.S. Saratoga with the Fighting Squadron (Hi Hats) and on the U.S.S. Yorktown as Air Group Commander and Air Officer.

In 1940, Captain Tate assumed duties as Commanding Officer of N. A. S., Sitka, Alaska. After spending two years there, he was given the Command of a C. V. E. Carrier, U.S.S. Altamaha.

LIEUTENANT COLONEL J. W. SAPP, Jr., USMC OFFICER IN CHARGE OF AVIATION CADET REGIMENT

Lieutenant Colonel John W. Sapp, Jr., USMC, returned from air combat duty in the South Pacific to assume duties as Officer in Charge of the Aviation Cadet Regiment. He brought to the Naval Air Training Center, actual combat experience of vital importance to Naval Aviation Training.

Colonel Sapp was appointed to the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1930 and was graduated with the class of 1934. Two years later he reported to Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida for flight training. Winning his "wings" in 1937, he received designation as a Naval Aviator.

In 1942 Colonel Sapp left the continental shores as a Commander of the second torpedo bomber squadron to be formed by the U. S. Marine Corps and led this unit in combat. Later, he served as assistant operations officer of the combined air forces operating in the Solomons Area. In this capacity, he directed activities of all tactical planes, including "Black Cats" that patrolled by night. This tour of duty took him into the combat areas of Guadalcanal, Espiritu Santo, New Zealand, New Georgia Island and Bougainville.

For his outstanding service to Naval Aviation at Guadalcanal he was awarded the Air Medal. He also wears ribbons for the campaign at Bougainville and New Georgia Island.

LT. COL. ROBERT E. GALER, USMC

OFFICER IN CHARGE OF CADET REGIMENT

Lieutenant Colonel Robert E. Galer, USMC, holder of the Congressional Medal of Honor and one of the Marine Corps' most distinguished Aviators, assumed command of the Aviation Cadet Regiment on 3 August 1945, replacing Lieutenant Colonel John W. Sapp, Jr., who was detached.

Colonel Galer, a native of Seattle, Washington, entered the flight training program in January 1936. On 13 April 1937 he was commissioned as a Second Lieutenant in the Marines and designated as a Naval Aviator.

On the day of the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, Colonel Galer was attached to a squadron stationed at Oahu. Shortly after the attack he was assigned to command the famous "Rockets" which later landed on Henderson Field at Guadalcanal. The squadron engaged the enemy almost immediately and over a short period of time accounted for 65½ Jap aircraft, 13 of which were to Colonel Galer's credit.

"For his extraordinary heroism and distinguished service," Colonel Galer was awarded the Nation's highest honors, the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Navy Cross. He also holds the British Distinguished Flying Cross, along with the Presidential Unit Citation.

RODD FIELD

COMMANDER JOHN L. CHITTENDEN, USN

Rodd Auxiliary Naval Air Station, placed in commission June 7, 1941, was the first auxiliary field to be completed for use in the Cadet training program. The field is a small edition of the Main Station and provides complete facilities for use in the cadet flight training.

Rodd Field was named as a tribute to that distinguished Naval Aviator, Lieutenant Commander Herbert C. Rodd, USN, who lost his life in a plane crash at East Camp Flying Field, Hampton Roads, Virginia, June 15, 1932.

Commander Rodd was one of our first Naval Aviators and, through his early experiments with aircraft, has played a major role in the development of Naval Aviation. As a member of the Seaplane NC-4, he participated in the first successful trans-Atlantic flight. For this outstanding contribution to aviation, he was awarded the Navy Cross for "Distinguished Service in the line of his Profession"; the Air Force Cross from Great Britain, and the "Order of the Tower and Sword" from Portugal.

Commander John L. Chittenden, USN, is the Commanding Officer of Rodd Field. He assumed this duty in November 1943, following a tour of active duty in the Aleutians.

Commander Chittenden was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1932, and received a further assignment to duty as Communications Watch Officer on board the U.S.S. Colorado. After serving in this capacity until 1935, he was assigned to duty at N. A. S., Pensacola for flight training. In 1935, he received the "wings" and designation of a Naval Aviator.

At the beginning of the War, Commander Chittenden was on board the Cruiser Quincy and on that fateful day in December 1941, when the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, he was attached to a Patrol Squadron. As commander of a patrol squadron, he was immediately transferred to the Aleutian Island Area. The Air Medal was awarded him for his "courageous launching of a lone dive-bombing attack against enemy installations in Kiska Harbor," completing the mission despite the fact that his craft was heavily iced.

CABANISS FIELD

COMMANDER S. P. WELLER, USN

Cabaniss Auxiliary Naval Air Station, second of the Naval Air Training Bases, was placed in commission July 9, 1941.

Cabaniss Field is the home of Squadrons 12C and 12D, where the syllabus is devoted to the basic stages of the flight training program. The powerful Vultee low-wing monoplane is used to acquaint the cadet with the heavier type aircraft. The Vultee is also used to train cadets in the art of military formation flying.

Cabaniss Field was named in honor of the U. S. Navy's twenty-sixth naval aviator, Commander Robert Wright Cabaniss, who won his wings at Pensacola in 1917. He was a pioneer in the field of Naval Aviation and during his career was instrumental in promoting the progress of aviation through various experiments. He was awarded the "Order of the Bust of Bolivar" by the Republic of Venezuela, for exceptional and outstanding work in the Caribbean Area. During an experimental trip in the West Indies, his plane crashed on Navassa Island and Commander Cabaniss lost his life.

Commander S. P. Weller, USN, began his tour of duty as Commanding Officer of Cabaniss Field in December 1943, replacing Commander Anderson Offutt, USN.

Commander Weller entered the U. S. Naval Academy in 1926. After graduation in 1930, he served on board the U.S.S. Oklahoma, and later was transferred to a destroyer group for training. In 1934, he received an assignment to the flight training program at Pensacola, winning his "wings" and designation as a Naval Aviator in 1935.

Before the war began, he was stationed in Australia as an Aviation Observer. He held this position until U. S. Naval units arrived and then was assigned to the staff of Commander of Allied Forces in that Area.

Prior to reporting aboard, Commander Weller was in charge of Aviation Training at N. A. S.

CUDDIHY FIELD

COMMANDER CARLTON C. LUCAS, USN

Another milestone was added to the World's Largest Naval Air Training Bases when Cuddihy Field was placed in commission. The third auxiliary air station to be completed was formally commissioned September 3, 1941.

Cuddihy Field was designed and built as a separate and complete auxiliary air station. It has all the facilities necessary for the administration, berthing, feeding, recreation and training of cadets reporting aboard. The entire syllabus is devoted to the basic stage of the flight training program.

Cuddihy Field was named in honor of a pioneer in Naval Aviation, Lieutenant George Thomas Cuddihy, USN. He graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1918 and received his designation as a Naval Aviator after completing the flight training at Pensacola, in 1921.

Lieutenant Cuddihy, on numerous occasions, risked his life while experimenting with Naval Aircraft. On two separate occasions, he was highly commended by the Secretary of the Navy; in 1923, for his gunnery efficiency, and in 1927, for the first successful flight over the Andes Mountains. In 1929, he was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross for his outstanding work while participating in a flight to determine the flat-spin characteristics of the F-4B-1 type aircraft. On November 25, 1929, Lieutenant Cuddihy lost his life in a crash while testing an aeroplane at N. A. S., Anacostia, D. C.

Commander Carlton C. Lucas, USN, former N. A. T. B. Training Officer, became Commanding Officer of Cuddihy Field on July 31, 1944.

Immediately after graduation, he reported aboard the U.S.S. Nevada, serving there two years. In 1933, he was assigned to duty at N. A. S., Pensacola for flight training.

He has served aboard the U.S.S. Lexington, U.S.S. Colorado and was attached to the U.S.S. Oklahoma at the time it was bombed in December 7, 1941. He has seen duty at N. A. S., Norfolk as A & R Officer; N. A. S., San Diego, as Public Works Officer, and was at N. A. S., Pearl Harbor.

KINGSVILLE FIELD

COMMANDER C. H. B. MORRISON, USN

A new chapter in the history of the World's Largest Naval Air Training Center was written July 4, 1942, when the fourth N. A. S. Auxiliary field was placed in commission at Kingsville, Texas by Captain Alfred E. Montgomery, USN, Commandant. Commander Donald S. MacMahan assumed command on that date.

Commissicning took place less than four months after work was started on the new field. Comparable in land area to the Main Station, the site is designed with two fields, complete units for each are available, providing virtually all the facilities of the Station on a somewhat smaller scale. Here the cadets take their advanced specialized flight training necessary before the use of service type planes of the fleet. Kingsville is the home of Fighter Squadrons 14A and 14C, Dive Bomber Squadrons 15A and 15B. The SNJ Trainer is used throughout this training and the syllabus contains acrobatics, fixed and free gunnery, navigation, formation flying, strafing and last but not most important is dive bombing.

Commander C. H. B. Morrison, USN, a veteran of 19 years service in the U. S. Navy, with experience on battleships, other service vessels, submarines and aircraft carriers, assumed command of the Kingsville Auxiliary Air Station June 1944, replacing Commander Henry C. Dean.

A native of Springfield, Missouri, Commander Morrison is a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Before reporting to N. A. S., Corpus Christi, in May 1944, he was Air Officer aboard a carrier in the Atlantic. He was stationed at Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941 and later received orders to the East Coast and eventual duty aboard an aircraft carrier.

WALDRON FIELD

COMMANDER WILLIAM A. STUART, USN

Waldron Field, the fifth Auxiliary Air Station of the Naval Air Training Bases, was placed in commission by Rear Admiral A. E. Montgomery, USN, on April 1, 1943. Lieutenant Commander C. T. Fritter, USN, became the first commanding officer of Waldron Field.

Waldron Field, located 5 miles south of the Main Station, is a complete Auxiliary Air Station in every respect. It has all the facilities necessary for the training of the hundreds of cadets that regularly report aboard. Specialized torpedo bombing squadrons 16A and 16B instruct the cadets in the advanced phases of formation flying, gunnery, navigation and dive bombing.

Named for Lieutenant Commander J. C. Waldron, the Auxiliary Air Station was dedicated to the memory of one of the most outstanding men in the annals of U. S. Naval Aviation. He was the courageous and daring skipper of Torpedo Bombing Squadron 8, who led his squadron against overwhelming odds to meet the Japs in the Battle of Midway Island. It was during this action that he lost his life. Cadets training at a field dedicated to the memory of this gallant leader share the heritage that makes U. S. Naval Aviation the greatest fighting force in the world.

Commander William A. Stuart, USN, assumed command of the Waldron Auxiliary Air Station in July 1944, succeeding Commander I. Smalling, USNR, who was detached.

After graduating from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1932, Commander Stuart was assigned duty on board the U.S.S. Pennsylvania. He served on this ship until February 1935, when he was assigned to flight training at the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, winning his "wings" and designation as a Naval Aviator in March 1936.

Commander Stuart served as Navigator on board the U.S.S. Lexington, and was later transferred to the U.S.S. Nevada as a pilot. In 1939 he returned to Pensacola as a flight instructor and then followed with a tour of duty aboard the U.S.S. Ranger.

Commander Stuart was Naval Air Training Center Operations Officer before assuming his present post.

CHASE FIELD

COMMANDER A. R. NASH, USN

Chase Field Auxiliary Air Station was formally commissioned on June 1, 1943 by Rear Admiral A. E. Montgomery, USN. The Commanding Officer of the sixth auxiliary air station to be placed in commission, was Lieutenant Commander G. T. McCutchan.

Instrument squadron 13C is located at Chase Field and is considered one of the largest squadrons in the U. S. Navy. The instrument training at this squadron is one of the most intricate and difficult phases of the cadet program. Flying unusual patterns with beams, radio ranges, under-the-hood and Link trainers are a few of the obstacles that cadets must successfully pass.

The field was named in honor of the late Lieutenant Commander Nathan Brown Chase, USN, who lost his life in a plane crash near Pearl Harbor on June 23, 1925.

Commander Chase was a graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy, class of 1908. He received his flight training at N. A. S., Pensacola and was designated as a Naval Aviator in 1916. He had been active in Naval Aviation through various experiments made with Naval Aircraft.

Commander A. R. Nash, USN, returned from active duty in the Aleutian Islands July 30, 1943 to assume command of Chase Field.

Following graduation from the U. S. Naval Academy, Commander Nash received an assignment to N. A. S., Pensacola for flight training. Upon completion of this training he received his "wings" and designation as a Naval Aviator.

Commander Nash has had 18 years service with Naval Aviation, serving in various capacities with scouting, fighter and patrol squadrons. At the beginning of the War he was serving as Operations Officer of a Patrol Wing based at Seattle, Washington. From there, his unit moved into the Northwest Pacific and Alaskan Area.

He reported aboard the Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi, in July 1943.

The ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

The nation's Number One Naval Training Base became an official part of the Navy on March 12, 1941, when the huge station located south of the City of Corpus Christi, Texas, was commissioned into the U. S. Navy. At the same time, Captain Alva D. Bernhard, USN, assumed the duties as the first commanding officer of the Naval Air Training Bases, after an impressive commissioning ceremony that was attended by the Secretary of the Navy, Congressmen, Bureau of Aeronautics Officials, local civic authorities and guests.

The giant Naval Air Training Base known to the aviation cadets as the "University of the Air" is a splendid monument dedicated to the "Youth of America" by the late Secretary of Navy, Colonel Frank Knox. The important mission of the Naval Air Training Base is to train the young men to defend their country in the air. The combined efforts of Naval and civilian personnel were welded into an organized unit to carry out this mission.

The Naval Air Training Bases has expanded far beyond the plans of the original builders. This was due to the fact that the Naval Aviation Program increased tremendously and additional training facilities were found necessary. The training program reached its peak with the Naval Air Training Bases, consisting of the huge Main Station with its complete operating facilities for land and seaplanes and six auxiliary air bases: Radd, Cabaniss, Cuddihy, Waldron, Kingsville and Chase Field. Each auxiliary Air base is a separate and complete operating unit with facilities for training the aviation cadets in the basic, instrument, advanced and operational stages of their training.

The first class of cadets to complete the training program graduated November 1, 1941. Since then, thousands of Naval, Marine and Coast Guard Aviators thoroughly trained in Naval Aviation tactics have passed through the gates of this great Naval Air Training Base, enroute to important assignments throughout the world.

Captain Thornton C. Miller, ChC, USN, began his tour of duty as Senior Chaplain of the Naval Air Training Bases in August 1943, after having returned from the Pacific Area where he was District Chaplain at Pearl Harbor. He was stationed at Pearl Harbor on that fateful day, December 7, 1941, when the Japs attacked.

Captain Miller, ordained as a minister at the early age of 16, received his religious education at the Johnson Bible School and graduated from Drake University. Following graduation, he held pastorates in West Virginia, Iowa and California, before entering the U. S. Navy Chaplains' Corps. Since entering the U. S. Navy in 1920, Captain Miller has had a long and distinguished career serving the spiritual, welfare and recreational needs of Naval Personnel and their families.

Captain Miller's impressive record includes duty both ashore and afloat. He served on the Submarines Beaver and Camden; U.S.S. Frederick, U.S.S. Wright, U.S.S. Salt Lake City, U.S.S. Chaumont in the China Area. Shore bases at Guam, Philippines, Hawaii and San Diego.

Captain Miller was detached for duty elsewhere in November 1944, and replaced by Commander F. Richard Williams, ChC, USNR.

CAPTAIN THORNTON C. MILLER, USN

The Chaplains Department maintains, at the Aviation Cadet Regiment Headquarters, a full time Chaplain who is available to assist cadets in their spiritual, welfare and recreational needs at all times. The Cadet Church Service performed by the Chaplain each Sunday in the Station Chapel offers a complete program of worship service for cadets of all faiths.

The Chaplain is a source of help in many difficult situations and counsels with the cadets in their religious and personal matters. He also conducts familiarization lectures for both the indoctrination and graduation cadets and cooperates with Lieutenant W. F. Kuykendall, ChC, has been the Aviation Cadet Regiment Chaplain since August 10, 1944, relieving Chaplain Bruce Evans, detached for duty overseas.

Chaplain Kuykendall, in civilian life, taught and coached athletics in a Presbyterian School in China and has served in Presbyterian Churches in Chicago, Illinois, Newark, New Jersey, Colorado and Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Before reporting aboard the Naval Air Training Bases, Chaplain Kuykendall was Senior Chaplain at N. A. S., Pasco, Washington and N. A. S., Sittka, Alaska.

SENIOR MEDICAL OFFICER, NAVAL AIR STATION

Although the scope of the Medical Department includes the physical welfare of the entire personnel of the Naval Air Station, the problems relative to the Aviation Training program are considered to be of primary importance. The efficiency of the cadets and their fitness for flying are given careful study.

Cadets have their own sick bay located in the Cadet Regiment Headquarters. There, they become acquainted with the flight surgeon or psychologist with whom they can discuss any problem which is affecting their flight training. Certain cadets may be referred to the Main Dispensary for special study or to the Hospital, where major treatments are given. The educational and preventive aspects of Aviation Medicine are stressed so that the future Naval Aviators will be able to keep themselves at maximum efficiency.

The COMM

A veteran of 35 years in the Naval Service, Commander Poshepny, Commissary Officer for the Naval Air Station and Officer in Charge of Cadet Mess, sees that good food is served, as all cadets will testify.

The Commissary Department and Cadet Mess have the responsibility of planning and feeding the many cadets undergoing training at this Station. The finest of foods available are served at all times and special occasions such as Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year are observed by preparation of something "extra special" in good food. This excellent food and fine service by chefs has served not only physically, but also in the building of morale during training of cadets.

Cadets line up for Chow

Flying over the vast plains of Texas and the broad waters of the Gulf of Mexico, the cadets accumulate valuable hours in the air. Gaining experience and confidence with every hour of flying, they are well on their way to becoming the Navy's finest Aviators.

After a week of indoctrination at the Naval Air Training Center, the new cadets begin their basic training at one of the Auxiliary Air Stations. All of the experience and previous training gained at Prep-school, W. T. S., Pre-flight and Primary Base is used in meeting the requirements of basic training. If the syllabus is satisfactorily completed, the cadets then enter the Instrument phase of their flight training.

With Link Trainers, hood flying of instrument training and all ground school behind them, they are now ready for a specialized or advanced Squadron.

Checking-in at an advanced squadron of their own choice, the cadets finally realize their greatest ambition. This may be flying with a fighter, dive-bomber, torpedo bomber, scouting, patrol or land based bomber squadron.

LIEUTENANT COMMANDER J. M. BARRY, USNR

Lieutenant Commander J. M. Barry, USNR, returned from the South Pacific Area in August 1944, to assume duties as N.A.T.B. Physical and Military Training Officer. He replaced Lieutenant Commander F. C. Lane who was detached.

Commander Barry, nationally known former coach of University of Southern California, entered the Navy in March 1942. He reported to St. Mary's Pre-Flight School, one of the original pre-flight schools, as Director of Athletics, on May 1, 1942, and set up the rigid athletic training program. After thirteen months at St. Mary's, Commander Barry was assigned Staff duty with the Commander, Fleet Air Force, South Pacific. His primary duties were to set up athletic and recreational facilities for flyers and ground crews in the South Pacific.

Commander Barry was later given the assignment of rehabilitation and rotation for Navy and Marine flyers in the South Pacific. In this work he established rehabilitation centers at Auckland, New Zealand and Sidney, Australia. He was then assigned to staff duties with the Commander, Air, South Pacific, and continued in that position until he was detached, 20 July 1944.

PHYSICAL and MILITARY TRAINING

The Physical and Military Training, under the supervision of Lieutenant Commander J. M. Barry, has a staff of Athletic Specialists to assist in carrying out the rigid physical training program. The program has been designed and set up to prepare the future aviators to be physically able to overcome any situation that may arise.

The training department has a supervised athletic program and facilities are available for any form of exercise. Obstacle course, football field, basketball, tennis and handball courts, boxing, swimming and a huge gymnasium, offer cadets a varied sports program.

A special course in "Survival" given in one of the huge swimming pools acquaints the cadets with the hazards they will encounter in the event they are forced down over water. Instructions are given and films are shown in the procedure to ditch planes, use parachutes, "Mae West" life jackets, swimming under oil-covered water, use of life rafts, seat packs and back packs so necessary to the preservation of life.

GROUND SCHOOL OFFICERS

LIEUTENANT J. D. LEITH, USNR

Lieutenant J. D. Leith, USNR, Officer in Charge of Ground Training School, N.A.S., and also Officer in Charge of Ground Training Schools, N.A.T.B., attended the Naval Air Navigation School at Coral Gables, Florida, after entering the Navy in January 1943.

When he first reported aboard N.A.T.B., Lieutenant Leith was assigned duty at Cabaniss Field, first as a Navigation Instructor, and later as Officer in Charge of the Ground School there.

He assumed his present duties as Officer in Charge of Ground Training School and the additional supervisory duties as Officer in Charge of N.A.T.B. Ground School Training, last March.

Prior to entering the Navy, Lieutenant Leith was a student and also a staff member of the University of North Dakota; University of Chicago, University of Michigan and Columbia University. As a staff member of these various universities, Lieutenant Leith taught mathematics and served in administrative capacities.

During World War I, he was a Second Lieutenant of the Coast Guard Artillery.

LIEUTENANT L. K. MARQUIS, USNR

Lieutenant L. K. Marquis began his tour of duty as Executive Officer of the Ground Training School in July 1944, after having served with that unit in various capacities. He arrived aboard the Naval Air Station in May 1943, to assume duties as an instructor in navigation and later became Navigation Officer of the Ground Training School.

He entered the U. S. Navy through the V-11 program in September 1942, and served first with the Naval Indoctrination School at Ithaca, New York and then with the Air Navigation School at Coral Gables, Florida.

Lieutenant Marquis was graduated from Harvard University in 1930, and later became a teacher of mathematics and science. Prior to the war, he was Headmaster and Vice President of the Graham-Eckes School at Palm Beach, Florida.

The Primary training of the cadets stationed at Corpus Christi was concerned mainly with the familiarization of Heavier types of aircraft. The plane used for this was the Vultee trainer (SNV). The requirements consisted largely of the fundamental maneuvers such as take-offs, landings and straight and level flying. Many dual hours were devoted to giving the cadets correct procedures. If all check rides were passed, a student would then practice formation flying which would follow his dual hours of instruction.

Three-plane sections were practiced for the essentials of formation work. Students were also required to make cross-overs, echelon, formation take-offs and if competent enough, step-down "Y" formation sections. Students are also initiated into the first use of radio procedure used at all of the Corpus Christi fields.

Most important is this primary training received at the Basic fields. The future Naval Aviators will always retain the valuable fundamentals which Basic training has taught them. This training will give cadets the ability to handle the more advanced types of Naval Aircraft at future bases.

It was necessary to have more than one field for Basic Training for the many cadets who were sent to Corpus Christi for Naval Aviation Training. It was the purpose of Cabaniss Field and Squadrons 12C and 12D to handle this situation.

Similar to Cuddihy Field, 12C and 12D taught many cadets the primary requisites of flying the heavier types of Naval Aircraft. The 2½ ton Vultee (SNV) did its job well. Students also learned much from the many Ground School subjects. Navigation, Chemical Warfare, Engine study, and Aerodynamics helped the important make-up of these Naval Students.

Fields similar to Cabaniss are well equipped to facilitate the training of their many students. For much needed relaxation for the cadets, officers and enlisted personnel, the station provides recreational facilities such as bowling, billiards, tennis, swimming, hand ball, and many other types of athletics.

Instrument training consists of fifteen hours devoted to flying the well known Link Trainer. This gives cadets the first sensation of flying without any visual reference to the terrain. Toward the end of ten link flights, radio procedure and beam flying are introduced.

Actual flying is then put into use. Again, the ever-ready Vultee is on hand to teach students the sensations of flying blind and coming home riding a radio beam.

The first stage of actual control of aircraft on instruments is concerned mainly with level, climbing and gliding turns, stalls, spins, unusual position and the proper recoveries with instruments. The second stage is entirely the flying of radio ranges with the fundamentals learned previously.

When this course is completed, a cadet who finished it with a satisfactory grade has acquired a knowledge of orientation, beam-bracketing, unknown beam work and recognition of high and low radio cones, which indicate his position near his landing field.

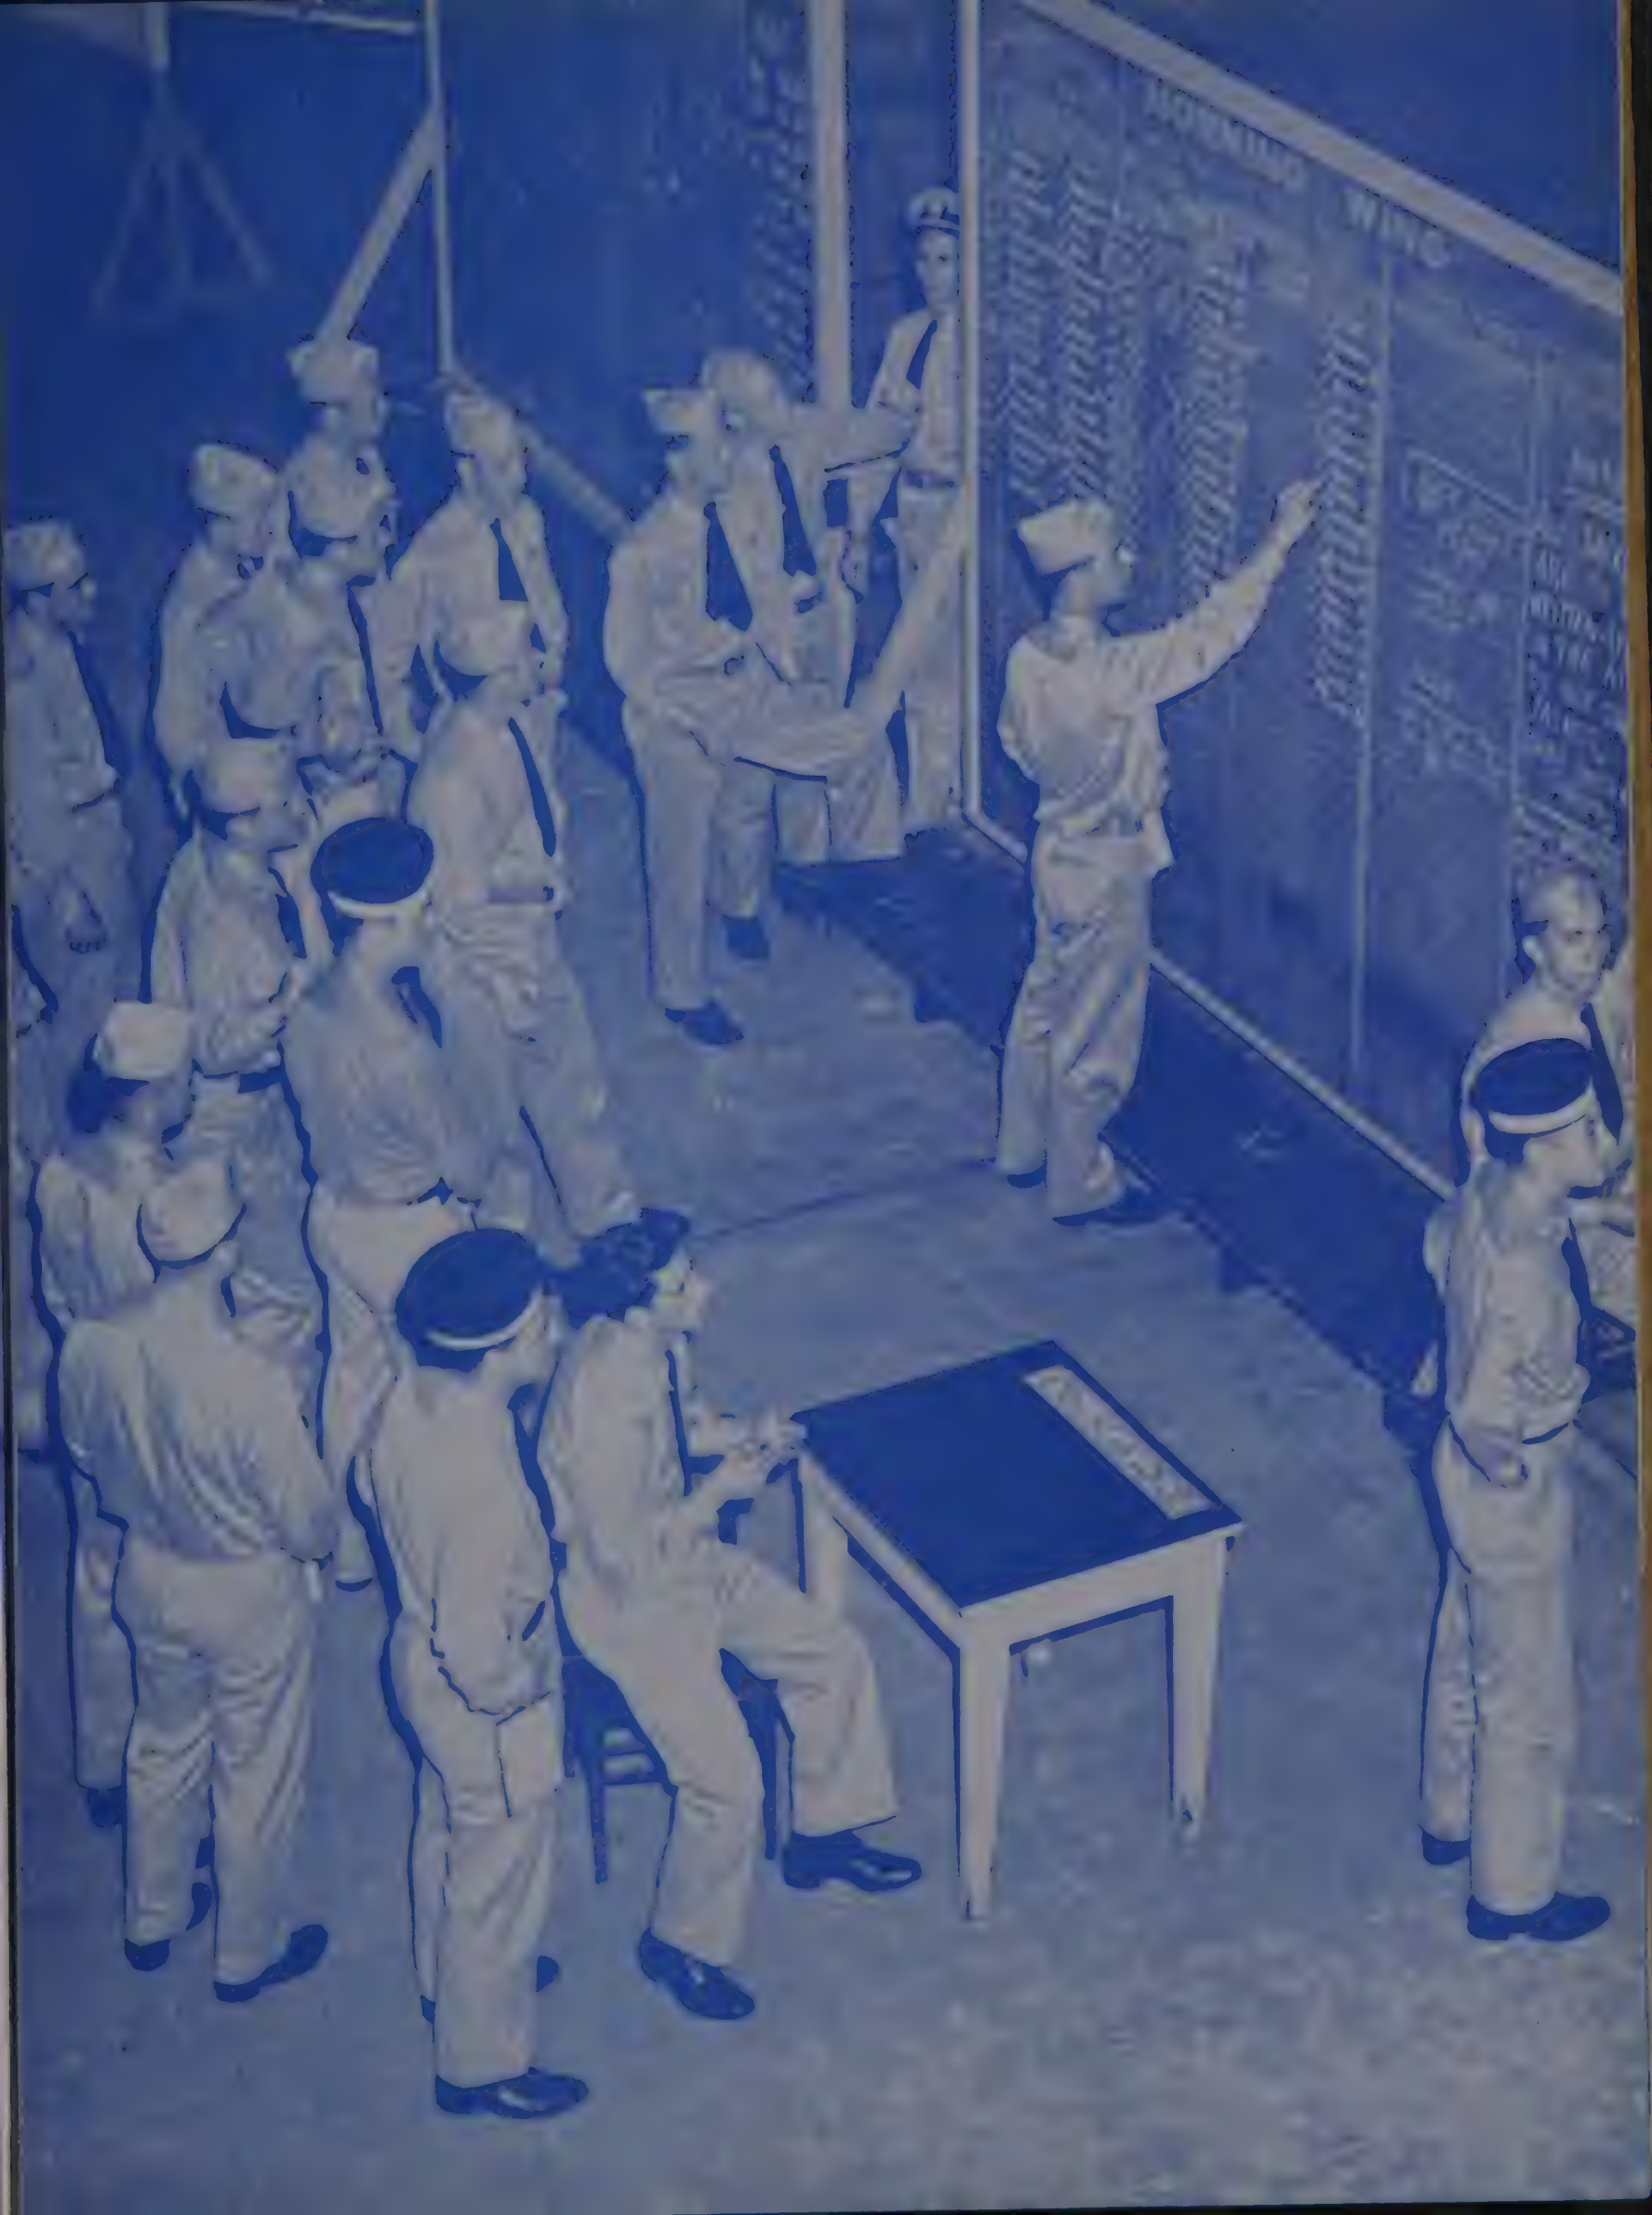

The value of instrument training cannot be measured and at times seems of very small value, but if the weather becomes rough and visibility is poor, any Naval Aviator will be thankful for the training given him by these Instrument Squadrons.

Cooperation is the essential point stressed in teams of flyers. If one of a group fails to work, the others suffer the hardships. In the battles of the fleet it might mean disaster to one pilot. At Kingsville's Squadron 15, cadets are grouped together in flights, each with six students going through the program together. They are taught to perform as a team and to think quickly.

They are given single-plane, dispersed, and formation attacks on moving targets and as their hours pass, smoothness and cooperation between flight members is the desirable result.

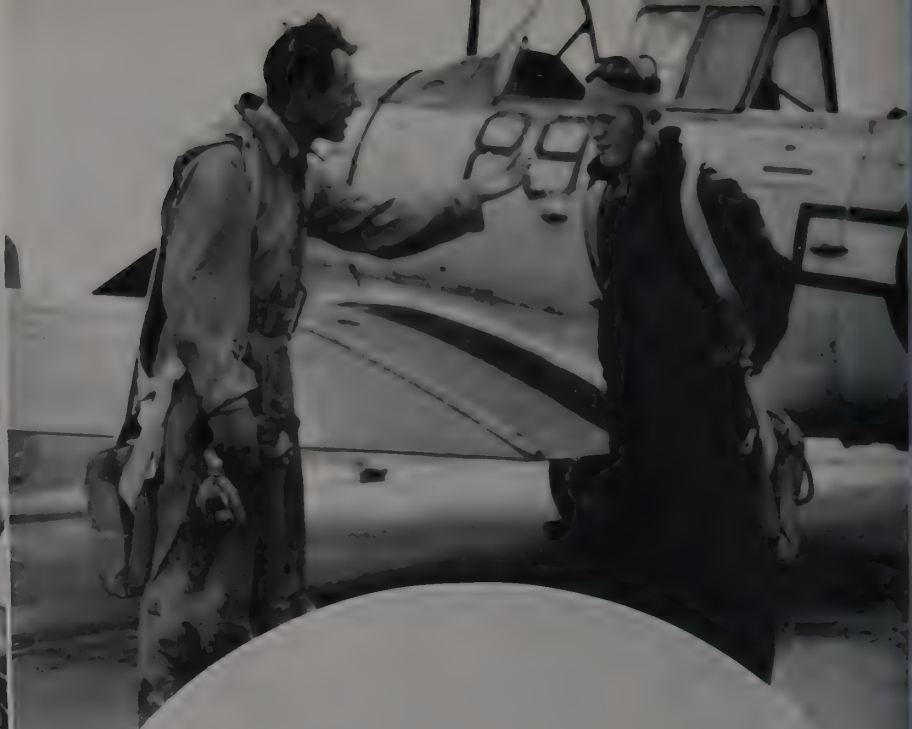

As the might of the Naval Air Force becomes more evident, it is only proper to remember that the torpedo bombers are the hardest of the many divisions of the Fleet Air Arm. Their requirement is to hold a speedy and dangerously close course towards enemy shipping until their torpedo is released and well on its way to the enemy destruction.

In battle the effective striking force of the Navy needs one primary element. This element is the Scouting and Observation missions performed by the Naval aircraft named the "Kingfisher."

At the Main Base of the N.A.T.B., cadets are given a complete course of instruction in flying this type of sea-going aircraft on water. These planes are able to land and take-off from the water. When they are based on a Battleship or Cruiser, they are catapulted from the deck of the ship. It takes a great deal of skill and training to enable a Naval Pilot to handle these planes in sailing, mooring and anchoring them properly. However, in the thorough syllabus set up at Squadron 17, the graduates are as competent as the work performed by the plane itself.

During their training in this squadron, cadets are given training in formation flying, extensive day and night navigation, free and fixed gunnery, night flying, ground strafing, glide bombing and depth charge attacks on both still and moving targets. Toward the end of their training, the cadets are instructed in taking off with the aid of a catapult.

These graduates of this squadron are well proud of the work put before them,—To find the enemy and make him known. With the best training given them in Scouting and Observation, it is certain the time will come when the enemy will be found for the final battle with the U. S. Naval Forces.

Along the Ocean Drive of the N.A.T.B., the large hangars make a remarkable appearance right on the edge of the sea. In these buildings, the Patrol Bombers, which train future Naval Aviators, are housed. There are three main types of aircraft used in training the many cadets who go through this Advanced Training. The PBY-5 are more widely known as the Catalina; the PBM Martin Mariner; and the older type of PBY's without gun blisters as part of their equipment.

The Catalina perhaps is not too beautiful in aircraft appearance but along with the heavy fighting, bombing and scouting aircraft of the Navy, it does its work most efficiently. The rescues of Naval Aviators after enemy action is one main purpose of these Flying Boats. They also deliver the morale-building mail to small islands and ships with long stays upon the sea. The time saved by transporting the wounded from battle areas is one of the mercies of war.

The actual training consists of primary, advanced and group flying stages. The cadets are given the primary stage with a thorough familiarization in the technique of handling twin-engine craft. The change from single engine craft to these twin engine "P" boats demands the best instruction, which is supplied by the flying officers of this squadron.

After nineteen hours of take-offs, spirals, turns, glides, and full stall landings, the cadet is ready for his twenty-four check that must be passed before his entrance into his advanced stage of flying. In this stage, beach approaches, taxiing, and precision landings are greatly stressed. Soon after this check, students are grouped and continue to fly together until they graduate. To make the future watchdogs of the fleet better equipped to face the problems of combat, cadets are given rigid courses in Navigation, bombing hops and night flying.

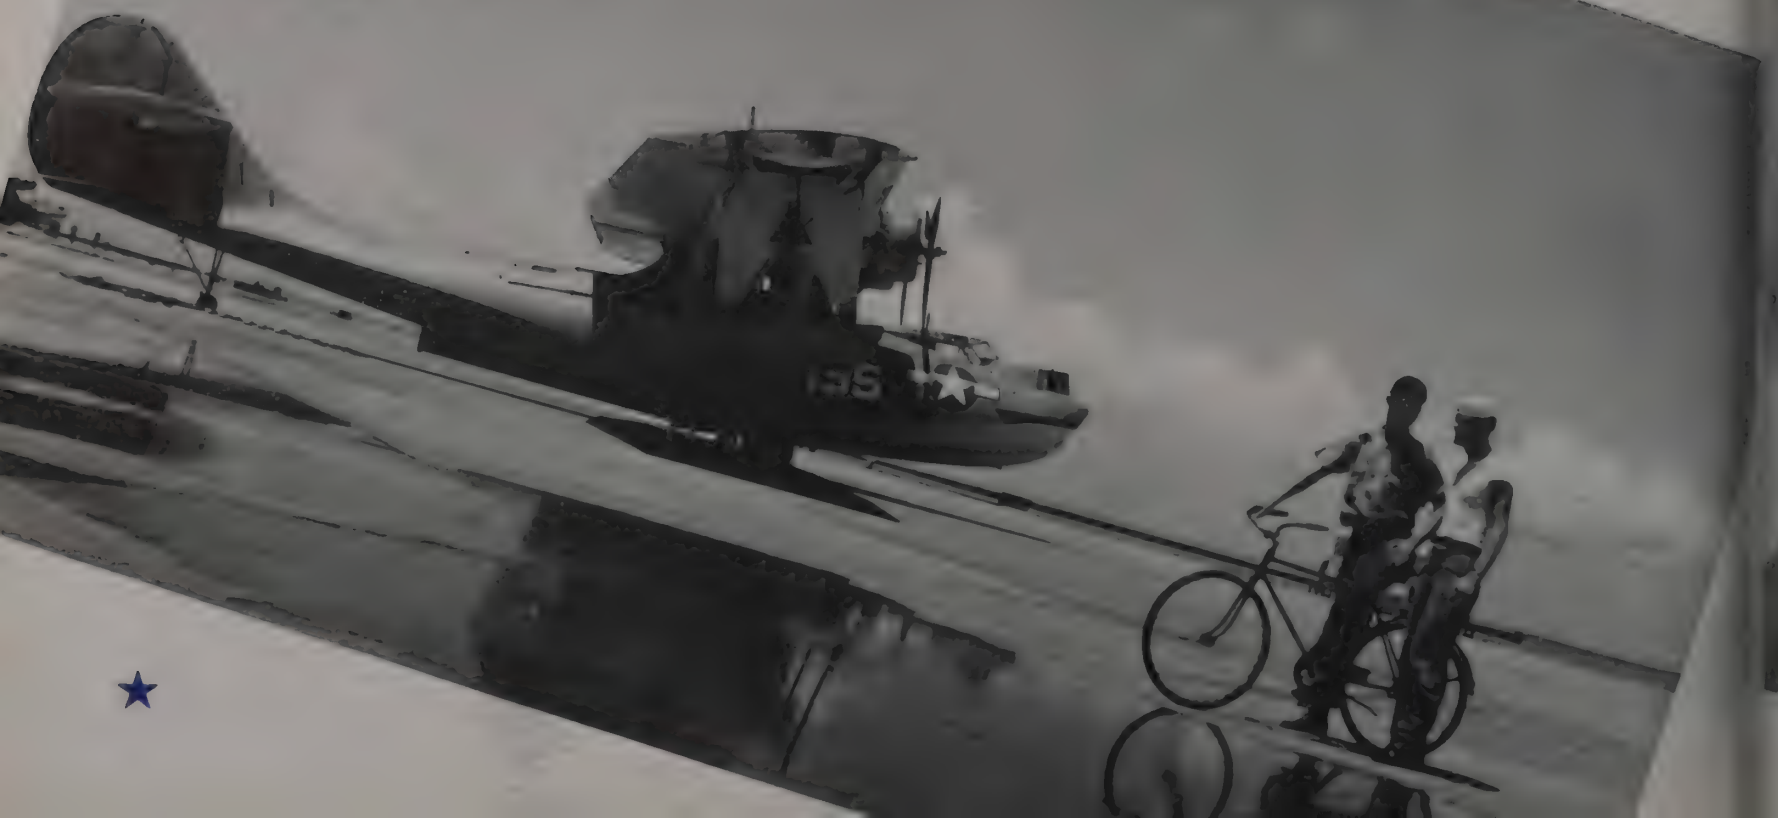

The cadets who graduate from Squadrons 18A and 18B not only have to be capable flyers but capable leaders, able to shoulder the responsibility of taking their crew into the combat areas of the Navy.

The lives of many a Naval Carrier Aviator have been saved by the Patrol Bombers in order for them to return to the enemy in another fighting ship and return victoriously.

Twin-Engined Beechcraft is the type of plane used by 18C for the training of cadets in the VB syllabus. Rodd Field is well equipped for this instruction and when a student begins to fly from the air strip, gone are his techniques of handling the single engined planes of the Navy. He is taught taxiing, take-offs, landings and fundamental air work such as climbs and turns. Also, during this primary stage, emphasis is placed on instrument flying of the heavy twin-engined "Beech."

The end of twenty hours of practice flying brings about the all important twenty-hour check. If the cadet passes this check satisfactorily, he is given four solos in this transport.

The work of these planes is primarily used as training for the future Naval Aviators that will fly at their Operational bases, the larger types of land-based bombers which the Navy uses. Graduates of Rodd Field are very well instructed in Navigation by the stars and during the final stage of training, cadets are given actual experience in Night Navigation, plus the flight of their Beechcraft.

Upon graduation, the new Naval Aviators are sent to various Operational Bases where they continue their training in checking out in the heavier types of transport planes of the Navy. Most popular are the B-25 Mitchells and the Venturas. It is most evident in the present conflict that even the might of the U. S. Fleet can reach ashore with disastrous results for the enemy.

The SNB Beechcraft is used in the advanced sqcedron for training in the multi-engine aircraft.

Many a Jap has looked up with fear in his eyes at the screaming sound of the Navy's Dauntless Dive Bomber entering its bombing run. Made by Douglas, it is sturdy and dependable, able to take it and dish it out as well. During the first part of the war, it was this airplane as much as any other that kept our Fleet in there punching.

With the idea of bridging the gap between the SNJ and heavier Operational planes, all CV students are sent to Squadron 19A at Beeville, for a three-week training program, flying the SBD. Fifteen and a half hours in an airplane which, although now becoming obsolete, is still a Navy standby, gives the student a good idea of what to expect when he is introduced to higher powered airplanes at Operational Bases. The jittery feeling of going up alone after only an hour and a half dual "check out," gradually turns to the calm assurance of the last few formation hops, and when the wheels gently caress the runway on the last landing, the student finally feels he is worthy of his wings of gold.

The rugged SBD operational plane is used to give cadets an idea of how a combat plane really works.

A cadet and an instructor inspect the SBD before turning it up to take off.

This flight of cadets are getting last minute instruction . . . These two cadets are looking over a map showing the battlefields of Europe at the War Orientation Center . . . Cadets in the ready room play cards to pass the time while waiting for their hop.

Graduation Day!—That day to which all cadets look forward with intense anticipation, has arrived. At last they are wearing the coveted wings of gold and have received the designation of Naval Aviator.

Graduation day marks the end of the training period as a Cadet. During this time cadets have been under the supervision of the Cadet Regiment, which consists of twelve different Battalions at the Main Station and the six Auxiliary Fields. The Regiment has supervised the living arrangements of the cadets, which involve numerous details such as berthing, messing and the transition of cadets from one stage to another.

The main objective of the Regiment has been to help cadets in their officer training by providing an opportunity to lead the life of a Junior Officer. There is a Cadet Regimental Staff of officers which has been active in assisting the Regiment with cadet activities. Cadet Officers have their Board of Governors which is an intermediary organization between the officers and the cadets. In general most cadets have regarded their regimental activities as an important part of their training.

CADET REGIMENT

THE Cadet REGIMENT

THE CADET REGIMENT SUPERVISES THE MILITARY TRAINING, THE BERTHING, MESSING, DISCIPLINE, RECREATION AND "THE HOME LIFE" IN GENERAL OF THE THOUSANDS OF AVIATION CADETS AT THIS CENTER. REGIMENTAL AND BATTALION GROUPS ARE STAFFED WITH COMMISSIONED OFFICERS OF THE NAVY AND MARINE CORPS WHO ARE SPECIFICALLY CHOSEN FOR THE TASK BECAUSE OF THEIR SUPERLATIVE QUALITIES OF LEADERSHIP, AND MILITARY AND ACADEMIC APTITUDES.

IN COLLABORATION WITH THE STAFFS OF COMMISSIONED OFFICERS, CADET OFFICERS, APPOINTED BY THE OFFICER IN CHARGE OF THE CADET REGIMENT, ON THE BASIS OF THEIR FLIGHT, MILITARY AND GROUND SCHOOL RECORDS, ARE CHARGED WITH THE HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY OF MAINTAINING THE HIGH MILITARY STANDARDS OF THE REGIMENT AND CONDUCTING THE GENERAL ROUTINE OPERATIONS, WHICH ARE VITAL TO ACHIEVING THAT END.

DEVOTED TO PICTURES OF THESE STAFFS AND TO ACTION MURALS OF LIFE AT THE "UNIVERSITY OF THE AIR," IT IS HOPED THAT THIS SECTION WILL ENABLE THE NAVAL AND MARINE OFFICERS AND AVIATORS TO RETAIN AS UNFORGETTABLE THIS MEMORABLE PHASE OF TRAINING WHICH HAS TAKEN THEM TO THEIR PRESENT DESIGNATIONS.

MEMORIAM.

The watchers saw it fall
A perfect body with its borrowed wings;
But as they had no visioned eyes at all,
They could not see there, circling in glad rings
That other body gloriously climb,
Unhampered and elate,
Heedless of wind and cloud, of space and time,
To make a landing at the Leader's Gate.

"I think he did not know aught dropped to earth,
Save that he lighter flew . . .
Save for his birth to undreamed height.
But to his ears
There rose a cry, a sound of bitter tears,
That overflowed the brim;
This was the only pain he took with him;
And this he bore, for that he learned e're long
How all their weeping would be turned to song."

Cole Park, with its beautiful view of Corpus Christi sky-line, affords many hours of enjoyment and relaxation to Cadets in their off hours.

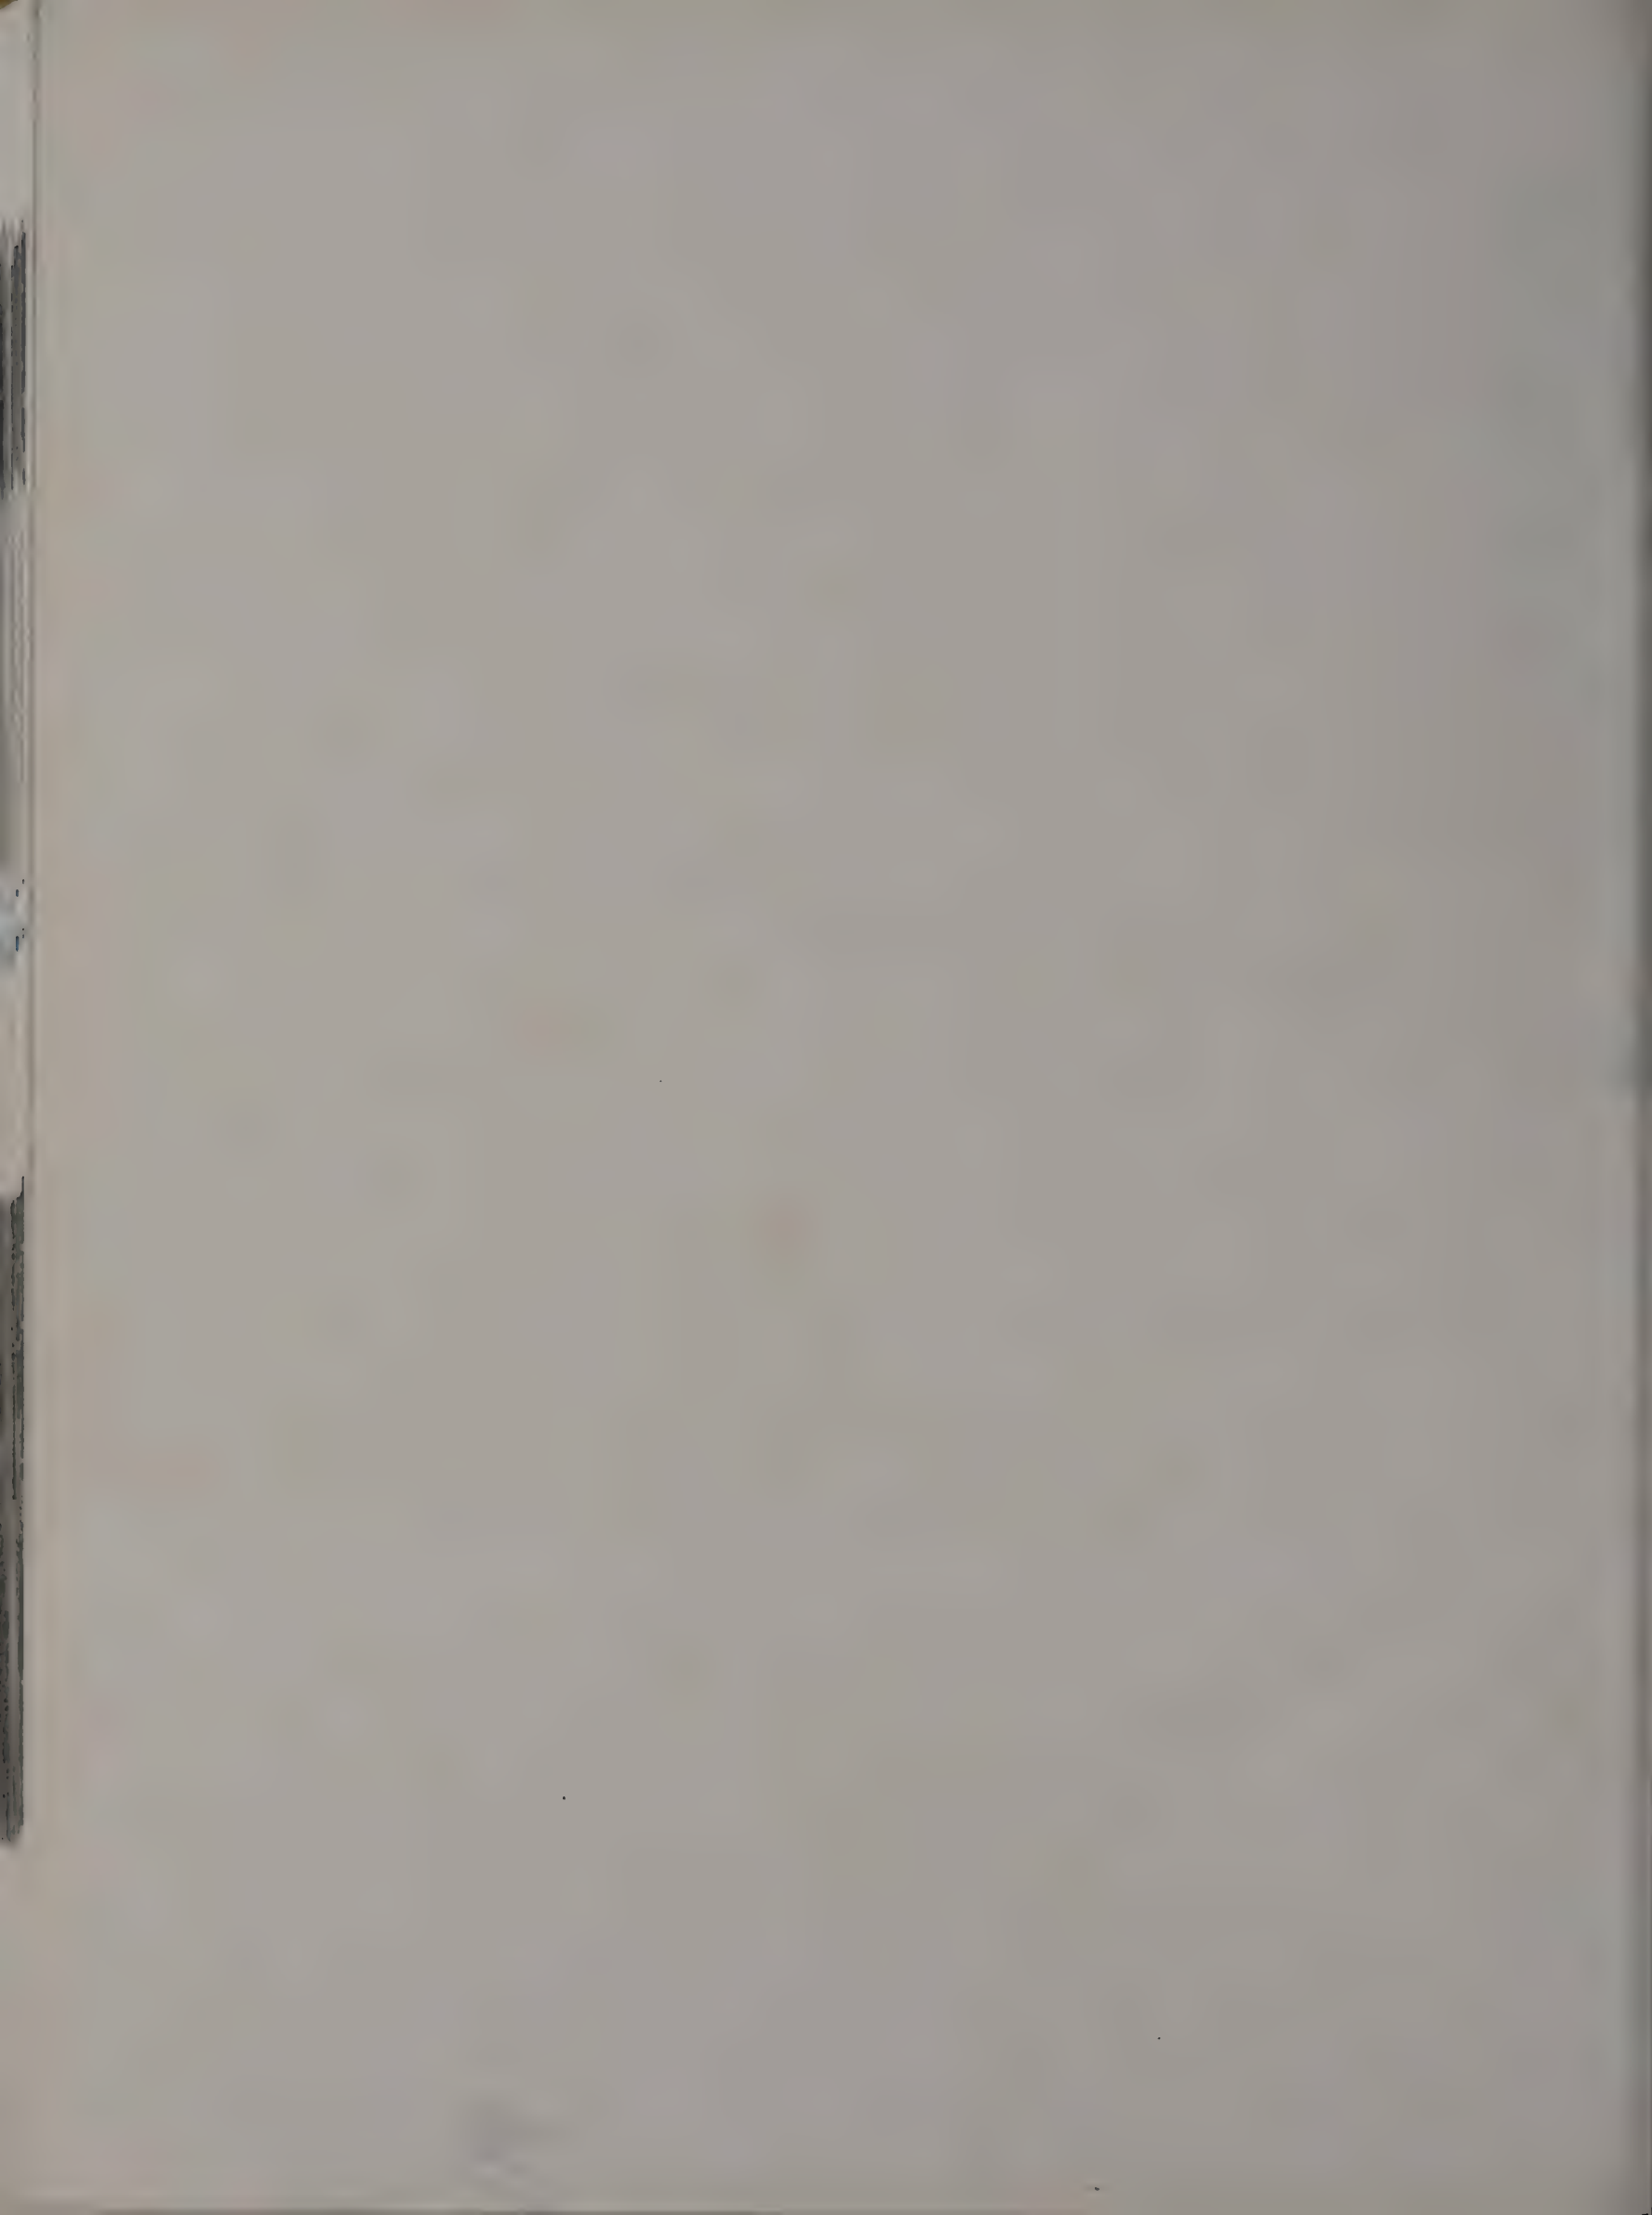

Excellent morale is a prerequisite of the Aviation Cadet. Taking into account the perfect physical and mental condition conducive to this state of morale, the center has provided every conceivable type of recreational facility available.

The first of these, in importance, is the Cadet Recreation Mess, at the Main Station. Unique in that it is cadet owned as a corporation, the Rec Mess is the hub of cadet activities. On its lower deck is a spacious ballroom, where frequent dances, cabaret dinners, and battalion parties are held. It also houses a restaurant and fountain, billiard room, music and reading room. Its terraced veranda faces the Cadet swimming pools.

Bowling alleys, basket-ball, volley-ball, hand-ball and tennis courts, boxing and wrestling facilities are available. Each Auxiliary Station has its own library, theatre and gymnasium. USO's on-the-hill and on-the-shore provide off hour entertainment ashore. Cadets have proper representation on the station paper, "Beam", and a corps of Chaplains care for the Cadet's spiritual welfare.

OFF HOURS

The Aviation Cadets "ON LIBERTY" are afforded various types of entertainment and opportunities to rest and relax from their rigorous flight training schedules.

Local organizations and individuals have been more than generous in acquainting aviation cadets with the local debutantes through teas, cocktail parties, dinners, and barbecues. The cadets have responded by having various dinner dances and swimming parties at their Recreation Mess and inviting civilian guests.

The beautiful and spacious Corpus Christi Bay located at their front door has given them the opportunity to go swimming, yachting, deep sea fishing and to take boat trips to nearby Padre and Mustang Islands for delightful week-end parties.

Short trips to Mexico, border towns and other local historical points have entered into making the Aviation Cadet's tour of duty in this area a pleasant experience.

★ ★ ★ History of the

The Slipstream, Yearbook of the Aviation Cadet Regiment, Naval Air Training Bases, Corpus Christi, Texas, was founded in the fall of 1941. The idea was presented for approval to Commander Erl C. B. Gould, USNR, Officer in Charge of the Cadet Regiment by the Cadets that a record and pictorial review should be kept of the cadet "life and training" at the World's Largest Naval Air Training Base, the "University of the Air." After consultation with Mr. R. B. Faerber, representing the Printing and Engraving Companies, Commander Gould found that such a book was possible and whole heartedly gave his approval. Contracts were awarded and the publication received its start.

An office was set up in the Regimental Headquarters and staff members consisted of an officer in charge of the publication and a group of cadets who furnished first hand information concerning life and training activities during their training period.

The first Edition of the Slipstream, Mark I, with Lt. (jg) D. C. Knock, USNR, as officer in charge, and ably assisted by aviation cadets J. W. Logan, D. R. Coe as Editors; J. A. Murch, B. L. Bingham, as Business Managers, endeavored to show by word and picture the development of the Naval Air Station from waste lands, sand dunes and mesquite trees into its present modern form.

Pictured in the Mark I are cadets in Classes 3A-41C(C) to 9B-41C(C) inclusive, more than 1200 who passed through regimental life to their designation as Naval Aviators and commissioned Naval Officers.

The Second Edition of the Slipstream, Mark II, presents as accurately as possible, a picture of the lives and activities of cadets during the period from October 1941 through June 1942. Every attempt was made to picture them at work and at play, and to show the task of the World's Largest Naval Air Training Center, molding these cadets for their war time role as a part of our United States Navy.

Under the able leadership of Ensign Y. G. Holbrook, Officer in Charge of the publication, a group of aviation cadets consisting of J. A. Smith, R. W. Alexander, J. R. Morris, Associate Editors; T. L. Baxter, R. N. Herr, B. O. Williams, Co-advertising Managers; W. E. McCrary, Business Manager; J. O. Gustafson, Circulation Manager and S. P. Ingram, Art Editor, willingly devoted their time and effort into compiling this book.

The Third Edition of the Slipstream, Mark III, emphasized a special theme "Navy Wings for Victory, Ashore, Afloat and Aloft" in pictures. Each phase of the combat training showing how the ground forces, the air force and the fleet were molded into the largest and mightiest fighting force in the world.

Lt. (jg) R. D. Fitch as Officer in Charge of the publication had a staff composed of officers, cadets and enlisted personnel. Ensign E. H. Wenberg, Assistant Editor; Aviation Cadets O. T. Gaston, E. O. Jones, Advertising Managers; J. S. Cavanaugh, Cartoonist and many others who assisted in the preparation of this book. Mark III was released by the printers in January 1944, and included Classes from July 1942 through February 1943.

The Fourth Edition of the Slipstream, Mark IV, was especially dedicated to the members of the Allied Nations who are fighting so gallantly and courageously in an untiring effort to end the war.

Our training program had expanded tremendously and it was found necessary to take group pictures of cadets so that all cadets could be shown in the Slipstream. Popular approval of this book was shown in the fact that it was necessary to order 6200 copies.

Ensign J. F. McDaniel, Officer in Charge of publication, received capable assistance from Lt. R. D. Fitch, Lt. (jg) J. A. Mason; Aviation Cadets C. Altman, R. H. Johnson, R. D. Erickson, B. E. Jaroslaw and C. J. Callahan, S2/c, were responsible for the completion of this book.

With this, the Mark V Edition, we trust that the Slipstream in its attempt to show as closely as possible the aviation cadets' lives together, through their hopes and disappointments, their recreation and routine, how they became an integral part of the great organization, the U. S. Navy. It is certain that the pictures and portraits displayed herein will serve for many years to come as pleasant reminders of old friends and shipmates who "cruised" together through the "University of the Air."
